Student's answers may vary; examples of correct answers:

The pursuit of independence in the latter half of the 18th century in the American colonies developed slowly. As the British crown and Parliament imposed more punitive and onerous laws, resentment grew among the American colonists. In 1774 the colonists established a separate shadow government and began training troops near Boston, Massachusetts. After military conflicts in 1775 at Lexington and Concord and at the Battle of Bunker Hill, the independence movement gained momentum. George Washington was named commander in chief of the Continental Army in March 1776, and representatives of each colony met in Philadelphia in June 1776 to draft the historic Declaration of Independence.
