

Question Marks and Periods

Some sentences below are questions. They need a question mark at the end.
The other sentences are declarative sentences. They need a period at the end.

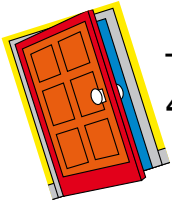

Read each sentence and decide if it needs a question mark or a period. Write the sentence with the correct punctuation in the space below the sentence.

1. Lee ran to the garden

2. Where is the key

3. Who is at the door

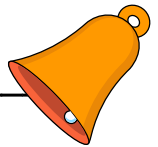

4. The rose is on the table

5. Do you like pie

6. The bell rang today

7. What time is it

8. I like green apples

Question Marks and Periods

Some sentences below are questions. They need a question mark at the end.
The other sentences are declarative sentences. They need a period at the end.

Read each sentence and decide if it needs a question mark or a period. Write the sentence with the correct punctuation in the space below the sentence.

1. Lee ran to the garden

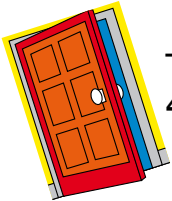

Lee ran to the garden.

2. Where is the key

Where is the key?

3. Who is at the door

Who is at the door?

4. The rose is on the table

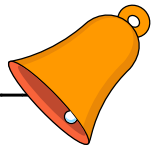

The rose is on the table.

5. Do you like pie

Do you like pie?

6. The bell rang today

The bell rang today.

7. What time is it

What time is it?

8. I like green apples

I like green apples.