

Sentence Diagramming: Subject Complements

A subject complement follows a linking verb. It describes or renames the subject. When you diagram a sentence, the subject complement is written on the baseline, separated from the predicate by a slanted line.

Example: I am happy.

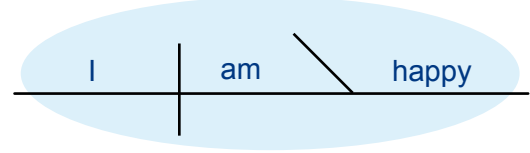

Diagram each sentence below.

1. They are late.
2. My older brother is funny in the morning.
3. The weather became cold and windy.
4. The old house down the street was scary in the dark.
5. It is very important to brush your teeth.

Sentence Diagramming: Subject Complements

A subject complement follows a linking verb. It describes or renames the subject. When you diagram a sentence, the subject complement is written on the baseline, separated from the predicate by a slanted line.

Example: I am happy.

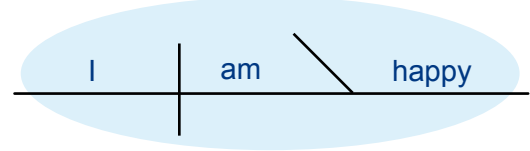

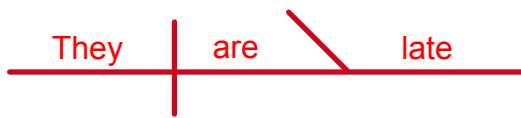

Diagram each sentence below.

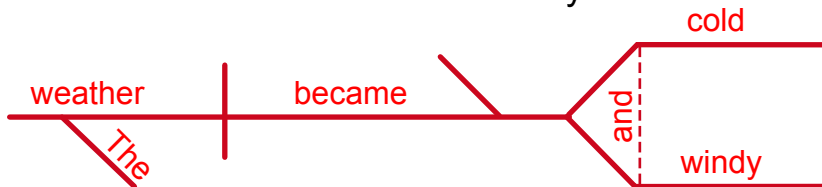

1. They are late.

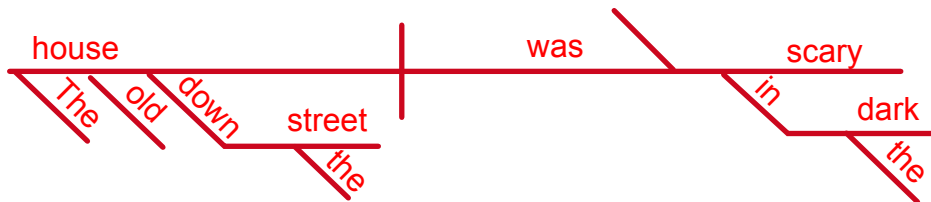

2. My older brother is funny in the morning.

3. The weather became cold and windy.

4. The old house down the street was scary in the dark.

5. It is very important to brush your teeth.

